The ghost stood still, unashamed, and drew partially aside the veil hiding the features.

"Well, who are you anyhow?" inquired the ghost, in a somewhat skeptical manner.

"You know me well!" exclaimed the skeptical voice; "I am Mrs. Surratt!"

The old man gazed upon the notorious spectre with firm, grey eye, unwinking, and did not let the trifling circumstance that he had guessed that lady cloud his vision.

He took his hands from his bridle.

"Mrs. Surratt are you?" How do you do, ma'am?" said the gallant Judge-advocate general.

"Better," she replied, drawing the folds of the celestial fleece more away from her face; "I am better."

"O, better, are you?" he answered with composure, "I am glad you are better."

Freight-Car Mileage.

By common consent the mileage for the use of all eight-wheel freight cars has been fixed at 9 cents per mile run;

four-wheel cars being rated at one-half this amount, or 4 cents.

This amount would at first sight appear to be insignificant, yet in the aggregate it comes to a very considerable sum.

In the case of some of the more important roads in this country, even those possessing a large equipment, the balance against them for mileage alone often amounts to nearly $500,000 annually.—Scrubner's Magazine.

Information on the Quiet.

"Can you shoot a revolver?" she asked in a whisper, of the girl next to her on the car.

"Yes; but don't you never, never tell any body."

"Why?"

"You know Annie Blank? Well, she learned to shoot a revolver and it got out, and after that she didn't have one flirtation a month. I'm not going to tell any body until after I'm married."—Detroit Free Press.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING.

The Non-Official Celebrities of Washington.

Eleven Ex-Cabinet Ministers—Did Joe Holt See the Secret Ghost?—Bancroft's Human Watch Dog.

Nicoley and John Hay.

Copyright 1889.

Even outside of official circles, no city of the land has so many distinguished residents, according to population, Washington.

Several ex-United States Senators have their seats in the city, and are decorated with signs bearing the names of some scores of men who made their first acquaintance with the city as members of the House of Representatives.

Several ex-Governors are spending the remainder of their days there, and at a party given at the tail of the social season I encountered the ex-Governor of Colorado.

Two others were in the city, Blaine, Teller and Frank Hatton.

Blaine and Windom had been called hither to take up the portfolios they had laid down, and had represented Colorado in the Senate, and Hatton was making a super-paper of the Post.

"A negro met me at the door," he says.

"I told him what I wanted, and gave him my card.

"He said I couldn't see Mr. Bancroft, for he was busy writing, but may be I could see his private secretary.

"I asked up stairs, and a negro came down and said the private secretary couldn't see me either, for he was busy, too.

"I made a hurried movement to the foot of the stairs, when a fluttering form appeared on the upper landing and looking over said: 'You can't see Mr. Bancroft, sir, and I myself am very busy, indeed.'

"'Are you Mr. Bancroft's private secretary?' I asked.

"'I am, sir,' he replied with proper majesty and impressiveness.

"'Very well,' said I, 'I am only a member of Congress, and am about to negotiate with that negro, and probably shall resort to bribery, to induce him to intercede with you, secure from you the distinguished honor of a brief audience.'

"At that the high-toned cox came down and leant me one of his ears. Isn't it odd?"

Bancroft has gone with his family to the States.

John Hay, who lives a block further east, directly opposite the White House, has gone to Europe with his family. He has the handsome house in Washington, and a wife and four children, who rank with the house. He does not pretend to be a statesman.

George S. Boutwell, Grant's Secretary of the Treasury, who has not had a dollar that he did not earn, is hard work, lives at one of the swell boarding-houses with his daughter. He practices before the Court of Claims and commands a large fee.

Creswell, Grant's Postmaster-General, is President of the Citizen's National Bank and lives in the stylish Richmond.

Belmont, Grant's Secretary of War, is president of the profession of law with great success.

All his old army comrades stick to him and give him their unbroken confidence and their business, and he lives in affluence. He has several grown up boys and girls in his family.

Horatio King, Belknap's Postmaster-General, is about eighty years old, is still straight, tall and light-footed, though he no longer practices at the bar. He goes into society, draws about him literary people, indulges in reminiscences, and writes for the press, criticizing or suggesting. He is lean and tough, and may easily live to enter into the next century. H. C. King, the noted lawyer of Brooklyn, is his son.

Judge Joseph Holt, who followed the flying Floyd as Buchanan's faithful Secretary of War, lives opposite the Capitol. He has retired from active business, and, though two years, is using his rheumatic joints with great freedom.

He has a son, a member of the queer world.

He takes an active interest in scientific progress and tries to 'keep up with the circus,' as he calls it. His vast shock of grey hair, his high, broad brow and square firm jaw are familiar around the salons and galleries of the Senate, during the session.

Judge Holt had a curious experience not long since. Invited and even urged by a distinguished clergyman of Washington, one evening he attended a spiritual service, to witness 'materializations.'

When the spook appeared from behind the curtain in the dim light, he broke out, "I don't believe in it! It is somebody fixed up!"

The ghost stood still, unashamed, and drew partially aside the veil hiding the features.

"Well, who are you anyhow?" inquired the ghost, in a somewhat skeptical manner.

"You know me well!" exclaimed the skeptical voice; "I am Mrs. Surratt!"

The old man gazed upon the notorious spectre with firm, grey eye, unwinking, and did not let the trifling circumstance that he had guessed that lady cloud his vision.

HOPKINSVILLE, KENTUCKY.

A live and growing city of 5,000 inhabitants, situated in a county of 40,000. The Louisville and Nashville has two lines of railroad in the county. The greatest tobacco growing county in the world. Wheat, corn, hay, coal, live stock and fruit products for export in large quantities. The city has four banks with an aggregate capital of $450,000. A planting mill and wagon factory, three carriage factories, lime factory, tobacco manufactory, two foundries, three brickyards, broom factory, two lumber yards, two large tanning mills in the city and several in the county. Spurts driving car and gas opera house. Five turnpikes centering in Hopkinsville. Building and Loan Association, Commercial Club, a telephone exchange, numbered street and houses in the city, gas and gas companies, and brick sidewalks all over the city. Eleven churches, two colleges, a high school and the finest system of public schools, white and colored, in the State. Western Kentucky Lunatic Asylum with a population of 650, two miles east of the city. A 100,000 acre park, and a fine lake.

A fine fire department and a company of State Guards. Little River furnishes an adequate supply of water for all purposes. Real estate low and rents cheap. Fine opening for woolen mill, pork packing establishment, fruit canning, tannery and many other enterprises. Climate mild and invigorating and exceedingly healthy.

The English have gained another big victory over the rebels in the Soudan.

The President appointed 53 postmasters last Saturday, but none of them were in Kentucky.

Dr. J. T. Hourigan, the Mt. Sterling murderer who recently broke jail, has been recaptured.

The Democrats made heavy gains in Colson's own county and came very near carrying it in the legislative race.

In the last Legislature there were 102 Democrats and 36 Republicans. In the next there will be 114 Democrats and 24 Republicans.

There are now 326,835 pensioners on the rolls who draw annually $85,000,000 from the Treasury. Every year it is growing.

Ames, the Kentucky postmaster appointed Tuesday appears the name of H. L. Holt, of Pon, Christian county.

Jno. L. Sullivan has been placed under a $2,000 bond and his trial will come up at a special term of Circuit Court to be held at Purvis, Miss., next week.

Protection, a Kentucky-bred horse, won the junior championship at Monmouth Park this week, in 1:20 1/2. The race was worth $35,000 to the winner.

The telegram from Alabama to Gov. Buckner that Tate had been caught was a "false alarm", based on a photographic resemblance. Tate is believed to be in Japan.

R. H. Crossfield, who has been elected to the legislature from Anderson, has been a standing candidate for representative for 26 years and has been defeated 12 consecutive times. But he gets there at last.

Americus M. Neely, who was killed three months ago, has just been appointed Receiver of Public Moneys at Little Rock. Arkansas seems to be one of those good Democratic States where the graves have to be railed to find Republicans enough to fill the offices.

Col. George W. Jolly, of Owensboro, was on Monday appointed Attorney of the United States for the district of Kentucky. Wilson, of Louisville, was his principal contestant. It is understood that Mr. John Feland, Jr., of this city, will be assistant attorney at a salary of $2,500.

A St. Paul sleeper was worked by two train-robbers Sunday night as it pulled out of Kansas City. There were but five passengers, one a lady, and these were relieved of $175 and two gold watches. The men whose faces were concealed by handkerchiefs then fired several shots at the conductor and jumping off the platform escaped in the darkness.

Three prominent citizens of Hopkinsville, Dr. E. R. Cook, Dr. Andrew Sergeant and Mr. E. L. Fouks, voted the Republican ticket for the first time Monday. The first two have heretofore been staunch Democrats and the last named has been a third party man. These are the first inroads the Republicans have made upon the Democratic party since Esq. H. Major, of Beverly, went over to them.

The KENTUCKIAN sees nothing to crow over in the Christian county vote. If the Republicans had polled their usual strength, Colson's majority would have been 2,000. On the other hand, if every Democrat who voted for Cleveland had gone to the polls, Sharp's majority would have been 300 or more in the county. The Democrats are simply the beneficiaries of a coincidence, when they might have been the victims of a political calamity.

The flourishing city of Spokane Falls, Washington, was almost entirely destroyed by fire Sunday night. Every business block but one was burned and hundreds of people were made homeless. The loss is estimated at $15,000,000. On buildings alone the loss is put at $6,000,000, with only $2,400,000 insurance. A man named Chas. Davis was burned to death in the Arlington Hotel. The city has about 20,000 inhabitants. The houses burned covered five acres.

THE DEMOCRACY

SWEEPS KENTUCKY BY THE BIGGEST MAJORITY IN TEN YEARS.

Gains Made in The Legislature. The State election Monday resulted in a sweeping victory for the Democrats. Sharp's majority will probably be 35,000 when the returns are all in and 10 or 12 members of the Legislature and one or two Senators have been gained in the net footings, although several Republicans have slipped in through party splits in Democratic counties.

NOTES:

The majority for Sharp in Louisville was something over 2,800.

R. P. Hocker for Senator in the Ohio district is defeated by Martin, Rep., by 600 votes.

Wortham defeats Blanford for the Senate in the Cloverport district, a Democratic gain.

The Republicans elect Robert over Trigg in the 29th Senatorial district by a few votes.

The Purchase gives Sharp 10,000 majority and sends a solid delegation of Democrats to the Legislature, with one exception.

Bill Reed, of Marshall county, who represented Marshall and Lyon in the last Legislature, was defeated for re-election by Prof. J. J. Nall, the Wheeler candidate, who is also a Democrat.

The first and second districts send only two Republicans to the Legislature and one of these got in by less than a dozen votes. The attention of Hon. Joe Blackburn is also called to the fact that the same districts elect 17 Democratic representatives and Senators in proportion.

Deafness can't be cured by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by ear-wax, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the outer surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness, (caused by ear-wax,) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

COL. JAS. F. BUCKNER.

His Death Recalls a Reminiscence of War.

The Unfought Battle of Hopkinsville. Col. James F. Buckner died in Louisville last Sunday night at 9 o'clock, of paralysis, in the 76th year of his age. He was confined to his bed one week, and hopes were entertained during two or three days previous to his death that the stroke would not prove fatal, but on Sunday night, while surrounded by his devoted wife and loving children, the fatal call came, and with perfect calmness and resignation he breathed his last.

Col. Buckner was, before the war, a citizen of Hopkinsville, and no man in the city or county was better known or more universally liked. He was born in Virginia, but his father settled in this county in 1816, when Col. Buckner was only 2 years old. He entered political life quite early, and when only a little over 24, was chosen to represent this county in the Legislature. So faithful was he to the trust reposed in him, that time and again he returned both as Representative and Senator, during one term being chosen as Speaker of the House, being the youngest Representative who had ever worn that honor.

As a lawyer, Col. Buckner was one of the most prominent at the Hopkinsville bar, and perhaps enjoyed the good things of life without stint. Genial, kind-hearted and charitable he made friends of all.

At the breaking out of the war, though the owner of a large number of slaves, he cast in his lot with the "Union" party and soon raised a regiment of home guards, and after succeeding in having it fully equipped went regularly into camp about 3 miles north of the city, dubbing it "Camp Joe Anderson." There are about 100 families yet living in the county who remember Camp Joe Anderson. They can never forget the gallant Colonel on his white charger at the head of his regiment; their first experience in camp life and the constant apprehension of an attack from the "Dixie Blues". And how one Sunday afternoon the report was brought in that Gen. S. B. Buckner was approaching the town with a force of 5,000 infantry and several pieces of artillery. How in a few minutes camp was broken and a position taken on the lawn of South Kentucky College. How eagerly a mere handful of partially drilled "home guards" awaited the command to march on Gen. Buckner's command, which had halted on the Greenville road 3 miles from town. Who of them can ever forget the suspense, the uncertainty, while a "council of war" was being held that night, and especially when they heard the rumbling of the wheels of the little brass 6 pounder across the pavement as it was being spirited away to its hiding place, to be brought forth only after the war was over? Well do many remember with what sadness went forth the command from Col. Buckner's lips to disband, but as many as wanted to follow him to Henderson, where they could be enlisted "for 3 years or the war." Thus ended the career of Col. Buckner's first regiment. His deliberations and Lieut. Col. Ritter's and Somerby's and Sasseen's, and Coopers and Underwood's prevented "The Battle of Hopkinsville." But Col. Buckner was soon put in command after leaving here, and did efficient service for the Union cause. This heretofore "unwritten history" of the unfought battle of Hopkinsville, serves not only to bring to mind events that occurred over a quarter of a century ago—when our now middle-aged men were boys and their wives had not reached "sweet sixteen"—but reminds us that we must all answer the final roll call, as has the genial, whole-souled Colonel Buckner.

The home-guard regiment was disbanded, Gen. S. B. Buckner moved into Hopkinsville, and the men who were ready to engage him in battle, not long after enlisted under the stars and bars, while others of them joined the Federal army, going into the infantry, cavalry and artillery companies then being raised all over this section of country. Recruiting officers for both armies vied with each other as to who could get the most recruits.

After the war Col. Buckner located in Louisville. When Grant became President one of the first appointments he made was that of Col. Buckner as Revenue Collector for the Fifth District. He filled the same position under Grant during his second term of office and so efficient was he that Hayes re-appointed him when he succeeded Grant.
